A JEWISH DIVORCE. - The New Haven Journal and Courier has the following: "Yesterday, a divorce, according to the practice in the Hebrew Church, took place at the residence of the Rev. J. Gabriel. At the present term of the Superior Court a divorce was obtained he Leus Rothschild from Esther Rothschild. One of the parties desired that a divorce should also be granted after the manner of the Hebrew Yesterday it was accomplished. As is somewhat interesting to know what the eremony consisted of, we give it. It was as follows: The wife, dressed in black, with a black yell over her face, appeared with her 178 husband before a Council of ten men, members SOUTH KING ST., | SOUTH KING ST., of the synagogue. There were also present three rabbins, one of whom acted as the petitioner, and wrote out on parchment a petition in Hebrew, asking for a divorce, and also wrote ent the decree of divorce; the second acted as the respondent of defendant, and the third as a kind of judge; the Council of ten a sting as a jary. The man and wife having appeared, they stood side by side before the Council.— The rabbins and Council then took an oath, all shaling hands—the oath being to the effect that they would always consider the divorce legal and binding. The wife then removed her reil, and the rabbi who acted as petitioner read the pesicion in German, and stated the case to the Council, who having heard it, decreed the diverce. The decree, folded up, was handed to the husband, and the wife raising her open hands, the husband dropped the paper into them. The rabbi who acted as judge then took it and cut the ends like a fringe. He then landed it to the President of the synagogue, telliag him to place it among the records of the society, to be preserved as evidence of the This baving been done the ceremony

"FASHION" IN CHAINS.—The last eccentricity of Fashion is putting all her female retories in chains. There is an eruption of them. From the crown of the hat to the toe of the foot, they rattle and tinkle and clank gold chains and silver chains, and imitations, which are neither. Steel chains suggestive of the implacable Miss Murdstone, jet chains suggestive of mitigated mourning, gutta percha chains suggestive of manacles. They are tau-gled in the front hair, they depend from the brek hair, they are attached to the bonnet in from in the manner of strings, they swing from behind it in the fashion of a bridle, they droop from the shoulders like a fringe of an epaulette; they are looped and interlaced across the breast, and descend tinkling down the back. Is there, we wonder, an internal sense to these fashions mysterious connection between truths and mamings? Is it to the increased interest in the negro that we owe the frizzed hair of our adies, and does joy at emancipation crop out in a twinkling jubilee of miniature manacles? Who can tell? Where is the seer who will read us rightly the signs of the times?-[N. Y. Cor. Cinneinnati Gazette.

PRAGIC DEATH OF A MISSIONARY .- Ac coenis from Natal, South Africa, relate that the Rev. Mr. Fredoux, a missionary, had met with a sudden and tragic death in the far interiot. Extrader named Nelson had committed a crime, for which he was a fugitive from justice, and followed the track of Mr. Fredoux, who was on a pastoral journey to Morokwain. Mr. Fredoux had instructions sent to him to arrest Melson, and compel his return to Motito, to receive judgment for his crime. When called upon to surrender, Nelson at first tried the effect of an apology, but finding that of no avail he save himself up in his wagon, threatening to shoot any one who should come near him. -Mr. Fredoux approached the wagon to remonstrate with him, and to point out the hopelessness of resistance, when, to the horror of such peciators as escaped, wagon and bystanders were blown into the air, and six blackened corpses, including those of Messrs. Fredoux and Nelson, were stretched on the ground.-There were 175 pounds of gunpowder in Nelson's wagon, and this he had fired. - Boston Ecc. Com.

AEROLITES often fall, but are very seldom caught at it. Mr. George E. Salle, of Ala., claims to have witnessed a late phonomenon of this description, and has sent the Mobile Tribuse an account of it, as follows:

"Tuesday May 15th, 1866 .- I herewith send you some meteoric earth and siliccous stone which fell yesterday and to-day in my yard .-They commenced falling yesterday about 9 o clock, and continued falling all day at intervals. None that fell yesterday appeared to have been subject to heat. The siliceous stone whee it iell was so hot that it could not be held in the naked hand. The latter, (the silicconsistene,) fell to-day about a quarter after 12 o'clock. The larger piece of earth, which, you see has been subjected to a high degree of heat, fell a few minutes atterwards. It was so hot that the girl who brought it to me was compelled to bring it in her apron.

Mr. Salle says all his family will swear to the inith of the above.

ARRIVAL OF A GORILLA AT HAVRE.-The Paris correspondent of the London Globe says : | C Captain Rachen, of the good ship Antoine, which sailed on Friday into Havre, brings good news for M. du Chaillu, and utter confusion to his enemies. He arrives direct from Lagos, and declares that during his stay in Gabon he 169k pert in the capture and destruction of a suge gorilla.
